The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1,2,9,10,27 and 46-49 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Cotter or Sperry in view of Jacobs and Port. Cotter and Sperry show the claimed system with the exception of his pulley being fixed near to a roof and the movable pulley. Jacobs show a pulley being permanently attached near a roof edge and further teaches the attachment of the load on the side of the loop adjacent to the building. Port shows a movable pulley 5. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide either Cotter or Sperry with a permanently attach the pulley near a roof edge, as taught by Jacobs, to enable the rescue of people at a location near the roof of a building, and a movable pulley, as taught by Post, for tensioning the their loops. To use a conventional breech, loadable hoist winch for the winch of Cotter or the winches of Sperry, would have been an obvious engineering expediency, by the substituted uses of known elements for their known advantages.

Claim 28 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over either Cotter or Sperry, Jacobs and Port, as applied to claim 1 above, and further in view of Kreuter. Kreuter shows a plurality of pulleys 44 for deflecting the path of a cable loop. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the system of either Cotter or Sperry with a deflecting pulley, as taught by Kreuter, for deflecting the path of their respective loop.

Applicant's arguments filed 11/28/07 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that Port's movable pulleys provides constant tension to his cable 2, it is noted that applicant's movable pulley 466 also provides constant tensioning force to his cable 31, furthermore, the combined teaching with Port is capable of performing the claimed functions. Applicant argues that there is not reason or motivation other than hindsight to use the teachings of Port, it is noted that KSR forecloses the argument that a SPECIFIC teaching, suggestion, or motivation is required to support a finding of obviousness.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
